

Saida Joshua-Smith

I am a senior at New Orleans Charter of Science and Mathematics High School and NOCCA (New Orleans Creative Arts Center) for Musical Theater. Music has been apart of my life since I was little. I started when my grandfather introduced me to classical and Jazz music. In addition my mother put me in acting, vocal, and dance classes because I couldn't stay still. My mantra is never be bored. Because out in the world there is always something to learn. For example, new instruments inspire me so I learned to play the cello, violin and piano. There is a door down every hallway many are scared of opening but I want to know what's behind it, because if its something valuable then I'm one step ahead of the crowd.
